

house of fun

We are a children's activity provider with a social purpose.

Every child deserves the chance to relax and just have fun! Having fun builds self-esteem and confidence in children and helps them become more well-adjusted throughout their childhood and adolescence, which benefits society as a whole.

Through its high-quality activities, House of Fun aims to create a safe and fun environment where every child can flourish and reach their full potential. Our evidence-based approach measures the impact of our carefully-planned activities on children's confidence and self-esteem.

Under the supervision of a fantastic team of friendly and experienced staff, we give children the chance to just be kids. All our activities are carefully planned so that children feel a sense of achievement, make friends and experience new things. Our instructors make sure that every child is catered for while adapting to their skill and comfort level and encouraging them to have a go.

Fun!

We infuse joy and laughter into everything we do, so that children go home happy.

Creativity

We encourage children to try new things, make new friends and have a go!

Our story

*House of Fun didn't start to make a profit;
it started to make a difference.*

We started House of Fun out of our firm belief that every child deserves the chance to have fun. The idea is to supplement the fantastic work done by schools, by providing extra-curricular and holiday activities that help children to increase their self-esteem and confidence through fun, diverse activities.

As a multi-activity camp provider, House of Fun eases the stress of the school holidays on parents. We offer a range of flexible days and hours to suit their needs, or whole-day camps running from 8:30 am to 6.00 pm, which are designed to complement typical working hours.

We believe that business can and should be a force for good.

For this reason, House of Fun also has a social purpose: we set aside a specific number of places at every summer multi-activity camp to provide for children from disadvantaged backgrounds. For over eight years, we have worked with disadvantaged children via close links with schools, charities and local authority family support teams.

We believe that happier children lead to stronger, more cohesive communities.

As teachers, we observed firsthand that unfortunately for some children, circumstances at home meant that the holidays were not always a chance for them to relax and just be kids. At House of Fun, we recognise that inequalities during school holidays can have a negative impact on mental health and wellbeing of children, and can affect children's readiness to return to school.

Our work doesn't stop when children go home from our activities.

We evaluate and measure our impact, including with disadvantaged families. Through our evidence-based approach, we ensure that our work is making a difference. We continuously try to improve what we offer so more and more families can continue to benefit.

Testimonials

"They were enjoying themselves so much I struggled to get my children to leave." - Kate

*"The activities were engaging and well organised, the facilities were fantastic and it was obvious within seconds that the children were enthusiastic and entertained."
- Milla*

"When I picked them up they talked about their day non stop all the way home and they loved it. Actually, they loved it so much that I booked them to go back for another day." - Claire
